The Goddess Coventina of Northumbria

All rights reserved The fort has many typical features. She was a Brythonic or Romano-British goddess of freshwater springs and wells who was revered popularly during the Roman occupation. The currently popular theory is that the city of Coventry takes its name from Coffa Tree, harking back to a leader called Coffa who held court under a tree.

Temple of Mithras

That gives us two units which are different to the Batavians, who are the main unit at Carrawburgh. Although the temple of Mithras has been in the care of the state for many years, until recently the fort was in private hands.
