Neonatology on the Web

Jackson Health System is home to one of the largest neonatal intensive care units in the nation, known worldwide for its cutting-edge research to improve neonatal care and its success in caring for critically ill infants. The Division of Neonatology at the University of Miami Miller School of Medicine consists of full-time academic neonatologists, as well as neonatologists who work as attending physicians in level II and III areas and pediatricians who work in Intermediate Care, the Normal Nursery and ancillary hospital nurseries. Patient Care Click the link below to learn more about patient care in the Division of Neonatology International Programs The Division of Neonatology supports training programs in Zambia and India to train local caregivers to provide care to premature babies.

Neonatology (NICU)

We are reimagining diversity and inclusion to promote and cultivate an inclusive environment that celebrates the differences and similarities of our patients, families, students, workforce and the communities we serve to achieve an equitable culture. Neonatologists — The Best Care For Newborns Newborn babies are not just small adults.

Maine Neonatology Associates

We are aiming for reports, from experimental to clinical, that provide a valid and clear message for scientists and clinicians.

Pediatric Neonatology

Division faculty members are active in many research endeavors including the 17-center Neonatal Research Network and the 8-center Global Network for Women's and Children's Health Research which are funded by the National Institutes of Health. We will be interested in basic science research involving laboratory, animal or physiological experiments, that will give us new insight or increase our understanding in pathophysiology and biological processes in fetuses and neonates.

Neonatology

The Division of Neonatology is a leader in our specialty.
