Promising Practices: A Literature Review of Technology Use by Underserved Students

Students are able to explore topics in depth and at length, and come away with understanding of text that can then enhance future reading experiences. By using positive feedback, teachers can be the oasis in the desert for their students. The PLC developed common language and understanding, which was lacking prior to establishing the PLC.

IRIS

This recording of an OK2Ask online professional learning session is from October 2020. This study through surveys and interviews of state and school district officials, as well as collection and analysis of school-level spending data explores the feasibility of improving the collection of school-level expenditure data by examining the nature and quality of school-level fiscal data collection in five states and four school districts that had developed their own systems for collecting and reporting school-level expenditures: Florida, Hawaii, Ohio, Rhode Island, Texas, Baltimore City, Hillsborough County, Houston, and Los Angeles. We are currently in the process of moving our archives to a new platform so that they can be viewed on mobile devices.
