Building Trust with Schools and Diverse Families

Why diversity in health care is needed A lack of diversity in medicine proves troubling for patients seeking physicians who are knowledgeable about their specific needs. As families began to attend the workshops more frequently, they were asked to fill out a needs assessment to find out how workshops could be made more useful and how to encourage more families to attend. People often try to go it alone, but we can lose sight of our goals and then become discouraged when operating solo.
