However, as noted previously, it also appears that at any given level of alcohol consumption, women have a higher likelihood of developing cirrhosis than men see figure 1 Tuyns and Péquignot 1984. American Journal of Psychiatry 146:1048- 1051, 1989. Among people between the ages of 15 and 49, it is the first.

Data and Statistics

PMID: 19731384 25 May, P. For each hospital discharge, data include over 100 clinical and nonclinical variables for each hospital stay, such as primary and secondary diagnoses up to 15 and primary and secondary procedures up to 15 using International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision ICD-9 codes , patient demographics sex, age, race, median income, and zip codes , length of stay, and discharge status. Higher rates were found for men 14.
