'National shame': Deaths of homeless people increase by almost a quarter

But, strangely, nowhere on the list is the ability. .

Gene Baro Papers

Wates put forward a scheme in 1965 to redevelop the site with 6-storeyed blocks, and despite protests the Pier Hotel of 1844, the Blue Cockatoo restaurant, favoured by artists from the 1930s to 1950s, and Thurston's billiard factory were all demolished in 1968 to make way for Pier House Flats. After an inquiry held in 1965 the Minister of Housing turned down the borough's plan while accepting the need for higher densities in specific cases, and was prepared to treat Chelsea's application as exceptional because of the high standard of layout and design, which might permit the high density of the revised scheme. .
