Cod fishing in Newfoundland

The Newman family, however, were unique in that they appear to have become involved in the fishery almost from its commencement and did not withdraw from Newfoundland until 1907. By the 1670s there were 1700 permanent residents and another 4500 in the summer months. Some nice color terrain photos are also included.

Newfoundland outport

The Department of Municipal Affairs has met with residents of south coast communities Gaultois and McCallum, and has working files for Snook's Harbour on Random Island, William's Harbour in southern Labrador and Nipper's Harbour on the Baie Verte Peninsula. People have Internet access and TV.

History of Newfoundland and Labrador

The attention that once was focussed so heavily on political sectarianism has increasingly been balanced by awareness of other sources of public discontent and disorder. Baker, Aspects of Nineteenth Century St.

Outports Of Newfoundland—The Heart of a Village

There will be twists and windings, declivities and descents into valleys, some lush and green, some full of pitfalls, briars and thorns.
