Electrochemical Intercalation of Lithium into Graphite in Acetonitrile Solutions: The Effect of the Anion Nature

The highest negative potential of an  $\text{Li} \times \text{C}_6$  electrode is reached when lithiating in an  $\text{LiSCN}$  non-aqueous solution. X-ray diffraction and microstructure analyses confirm the presence in the electrode's upper layers of predominantly layered compounds  $\text{Li} \times \text{C}_6 \text{A}_y$ , where A is anion.

Electrochemical Intercalation of Lithium into Graphite in Acetonitrile Solutions: The Effect of the Anion Nature

Effect of the anion nature on the cathodic intercalation of lithium into graphite is studied.
