A mayor can also be a general councillor and a president of a Regional Council can also be deputy-mayor of a city.

Dual Mandate, Africa

The double mandate was prohibited from the start in and ; it was abolished in Ontario in 1872, in Manitoba in 1873, and in 1873 the federal parliament passed a law against it; Quebec passed its own law abolishing it in 1874.

Northern Rhodesia

Lugard believed that, at the grassroots, traditional authority would constitute an effective instrument in enforcing colonial policies, administering justice in local disputes, maintaining law and order, and collecting taxes. In 1927, the British government appointed the on the possible closer union of the British territories in East and Central Africa.
