Tomas Tranströmer

I was a university graduate student, and the Department had an excellent lecture series of visiting writers: Ai, Maya Angelou, Margaret Atwood, John Barth, Donald Barthelme, Marvin Bell, Lorna Dee Cervantes, William Gass, William Matthews, George Plimpton, and Ntozake Shange. Two weeks later Anya visited the same bookstore on her way back to Russia.

It is always so early in here, it is before the crossroads, before the irrevocable choices.

Tomas Tranströmers ungdomsdikter

The book would be a small selection of prose poems from a book published in Sweden.

Memoir Stockholm

I had come here to this Swedish city to simply close a circle with the Tranströmers, as this would be the final visit to Europe for years still to come. Tranströmer's musical interests were prominent in many collections — he was an accomplished amateur musician, playing piano and organ. In 1951 Tranströmer visited Iceland together with a friend from school.
