Goodreads book review: The Lost Dog

I love Jeff Lemire's idea of only having the colors black, white, and red. The link I feel is more tenuous and alludes perhaps to ghosts, which abound here but not In the Cage.

The Lost Dog, Short Story

Tom found himself fighting down an impulse to steal one. She lives with her partner Charlie in a fashionable part of London but not so fashionable flat and their relationship could be best described as tolerable.

Lost Dogs MC

She finds herself making better and more responsible decisions, making new friends, her relationship improving, and her world opening up. But the writing is beautiful. The refreshing smell of rain filled the place.

The Lost Dog by Michelle de Kretser

The speech patterns of a particular minor character in this book are a masterclass in that respect. But the rebuke lodged in Tom. Ethan, Gabe and Beatrice have lost their larger-than-life dad.

And don't worry I'm still also on Trollope's DR THORNE. Should have been my ideal read.

Lost Dog: A Love Story by Kate Spicer

On a cocaine fuelled night she writes 'I am just enjoying the anaesthetic escapism from a non-specific discomfort that throughout my whole adult life I have never quite been able to escape unless I am high'.

The Lost Dog: A Novel

I looked up to see Rose. It is not, however, a schmaltzy, cute tale.
