Race Consciousness and the Health of African Americans

Educational intervention increased referrals to allopathic care by traditional healers in three high HIV-prevalence rural districts in Mozambique. Themes of inequality, social injustice, and perceived inherent inferiority of African Americans resonated throughout all aspects of American life.

Journal of Health and Social Behavior. Of those without any HIV training the results were similar with a minority 33, 44% willing to treat, whilst the majority either would not 12, 16% or were unsure 30, 40%, if they would do so. Thus, the most successful programs utilized multiple strategies for implementing comprehensive programs.
