Other Orders that worked with the poor were afraid they would be absorbed by the Piarists. The young man in Gethsemane, according to Mark, is dressed in a linen cloth. Phyllis Wheatley published her poems, under the scrutiny of Thomas Jefferson, Immanuel Kant, and numerous other white intellectuals of the day.

Commentary on the Book of Gospel of Mark by Matthew Henry

· You are My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased: What could be more glorious than to have God the Father praise and affirm you publicly? How important this was to the author is clear from the fact that he repeats the reference in the following description of how the young man, having fled naked, left behind. Mary recognized her own lowliness before God.
