EC3	The supervisor publishes its objectives and is accountable through a transparent framework for the discharge of its duties in relation to those objectives. ¹³
Description and findings of EC3	In accordance with Article 18 para. 3 FMAFG, the FMA submits a report on the past calendar year to the Finance Committee of the National Assembly and the Federal Minister of Finance within four months after the end of each calendar year. The report contains the FMA Mission Statement, data on the financial market development, the FMA's role in international developments, legal developments, operational supervision for all supervisory areas, an overview of the FMA's legal and enforcement activities as well as the strategy goals and perspectives for the near future. These annual reports are published via the FMA website in German and in English language. (http://www.fma.gv.at/en/about-the-fma/publications-the-annual-reports.html) Objectives are shared with the public on a yearly basis by means of the annual report of the FMA.
EC4	The supervisor has effective internal governance and communication processes that enable supervisory decisions to be taken at a level appropriate to the significance of the issue and timely decisions to be taken in the case of an emergency. The governing body is structured to avoid any real or perceived conflicts of interest.
Description and findings of EC4	In handling official activities related to supervision, the FMA, as far as possible, draws on analysis and inspection results as well as the results of the expert opinions prepared by the DoNB during model approval procedures. In addition to using information from third parties (e.g. bank auditors) or from the respective CI, this collaborative setup calls for intensive, timely coordination between the two institutions. A single point of contact (SPOC) principle, by which one person on expert level within each of the two institutions is appointed as a contact for a given CI was introduced in the course of the reform of the Austrian supervisory framework in 2008. The FMA SPOC and the corresponding DoNB SPOC exchange information frequently and are thus a key communication bridge between the two institutions. The SPOC tasks include harmonizing internal positions and obtaining authorizations of analysis (DoNB SPOC) or of supervisory action (FMA SPOC), scheduling and executing appointments with CIs, contacting experts for special issues, coordinating investigations, exchanging information with other supervisory bodies internationally and conducting national as well as international research. Moreover,
