Andy Stanley on Evangelicals After Trump

Pew Research Center is a nonpartisan fact tank that informs the public about the issues, attitudes and trends shaping the world. .

The Church's Role in Politics

The collapse of Western civilization will not be remedied by political movements. But the choice was easy: As someone who identifies as a born-again Christian, he believes he has to tell the truth. He just suspects that the enemy might be lurking in his own house.

The Democrats admit they are a Post

Kingdom Voting Is Outside the Two-Party System Reading from the passage, Evans explains that a pre-incarnate God showed up before the famous battle of Jericho and made it clear he represented a third, distinct side: Now when Joshua was near Jericho, he looked up and saw a man standing in front of him with a drawn sword in his hand. Such bias might be shown by, for example, only inviting a favored candidate to the forum the church is holding, favoring one of the candidates in opening remarks at such a forum, or by doing political fundraising at the forum.

The Church's Role in Politics

We need to know when to change our views to meet a changing culture—and when to stand by them. Like Morris, Tim Archer, director of Spanish-speaking ministries for Texas-based said he expected a higher GOP percentage.

Andy Stanley on Evangelicals After Trump

God commands us to pray for our leaders—for their wisdom, for their hearts and for them to be led by Him. An unjust law is a code that is out of harmony with the moral law.

Why the Catholic Church Does Not Endorse Political Candidates

It's a little awkward to ask, but we need your help. Yet somehow we manage to worship together Sunday after Sunday, supporting and encouraging each another on this journey of life and faith. But it bothered him that many Republicans viewed their political opponents as evil enemies, rather than people who might even share their faith.

Do politics belong in church?

While this is all very sad, we must remember it is also no surprise. Many of us who work among these disillusioned young people find ourselves holding our breath till November.

The Democrats admit they are a Post

It was another effort at discernment that led members of my congregation on a listening trip to Baltimore during the protests following the death of Freddie Gray, who died while in police custody. We stood with them—and with the police—against Islamophobia.
