TÂRÎH

Ahmed Cevdet recognized that military and administrative reforms were necessary, but being a conservative, was reluctant to use European law as an example, opting for Islamic law. Four volumes of Mecelle civil code promulgated in the nineteenth century and in force until 1926 were published by the Civil Code Society, which was founded under his chairmanship. Although the embassy building went up in flames in 1822, Polish travellers recall that in the late 19 th century a small chapel commemorating the former embassy could be found next to the building no 8 at Leh Sokağı Łatka, 2001.
