Beginning with Moses

It requires a change of mind as well as of the heart. The Gentile religions of the present—above all those of India and China—are in our schools and playgrounds.

Meeting the Theological Challenges of the New Century

Led by the Spirit and utilising all the resources of their intelligence, they strive to assimilate the intelligible content of the Word of God, so that it may become light and nourishment for their faith. Schneider, 'Church and Biblical Scholarship in Dialogue', IT 42 1985 353-8. The whole Church lives, as it were, at the interface between the Gospel and everyday life, which is also the boundary between the past and the future, as history moves forward.

Beginning with Moses

Rather, it was always modelled on the reality being contemplated, which far exceeds the capacities of human reason. By prophecy I do not mean the ability to predict the future. The important details of the New Directions application and program are below.

New Directions in Theology Today: Volume VI. Man: the New Humanism

Pentateuchal source analysis, Frye regards these as irrelevant for his approach which deals with the Bible as it has come down within the Christian tradition and as it has exerted a tremendous influence on English literature. They also tend to underline how a literary work, once it has achieved its final written form, attains a life of its own, independent of the historical circumstances which gave it birth.

See the discussion by S. Morris in his New Testament Theology Grand Rapids, Zondervan 1986 9, comments that it appears that for Bultmann much of the New Testament is not theology, whereas in Paul and John we have two theologies. Called and gifted, they exist in a particular relationship to the body and all of its members.

Childs, 'Some Reflections on the Search for a Biblical Theology', 9. Opportunities for presentations, seminars and conferences that will strengthen the mutual awareness and appreciation of colleagues in theological institutions and faculties should be cultivated.

Description: New directions in theology today

With regard to the question of the church and the world, we need to start over.
