clay diminishes when it starts to absorb water and soaked.

Hennessey (Kathleen) papers

In 1766 the Biddulphs sold the farms to Harry Lankford of Hurdfield in Prestbury Ches. Some existing firms added knitted goods to their products, and new firms specializing in knitwear established themselves in the town. In this study the effect of socking on the shear strength of a Malaysian granitic residual soil was examined by conducting a series of consolidation drained triaxial tests.

In 1721 Leek joined with several Cheshire towns in successfully petitioning on behalf of all employed in the manufacture of 'needle-wrought buttons' for the passing of an Act banning the wearing of cloth buttons and buttonholes. Leek also increased its importance as a market town, with a new cattle market in 1874 and a covered butter market in 1897.
