Growing up in Chicago in the 40s. « A Brief History...

Bob called Bing 1 Jeff; 2 Buster; 3 Chum; 4 Daddy; and 5 Lover. When the polio epidemics, which always came in summer, were particularly bad we couldn't even play with other children in our neighborhood. We moved in 1944 to a new home, the one pictured above.

Growing Up in the 40s & 50s

It gave three of the many gags Bob pulls when he runs into a bad joke during final rehearsal. And we only had one car, Dad used it to get to work, so we had to walk everywhere, or wait for Dad to come home. Dear Diary, Bob was at the Marine base at Camp Pendleton, California, tonight.

Memories of Growing Up in the 40's and 50's (and since, even)

Fred Allen was second in champion of champions, and Jack Benny was number two comedian. Dear Diary, I saw a list in the paper today of the ten best-dressed women in uniform.

Growing up in the Thirties and Forties

The temperature stays in the middle seventies all day.

Growing Up in the 40s & 50s

It gets better every time I see it. They were added about a year later when Gordon came home from the war. Dear Diary, This has been a pretty good year in regards to Mr.
