My vet assured me that not having a spleen will not likely have a negative affect on her because I live in the southeast. I recently took my senior dog 14 , Ian, to get an ultrasound for an unusual bump I noticed on his tummy. Was wondering if anyone else as experienced that before there dog was diagnosed that they smelt bad and after op it went.

She was loving and herself as I would believe because she was not in pain which docs usually give them meds before they leave. I am sorry to hear about the german shepherd. This sort of rapid deterioration is always a worry, especially with a question over his spleen.

The Spleen: What does it do and how will my dog manage if it has to be removed?

Will it be a malignant tumor and will it have spread to other organs? And for those of you who did meet a cancer diagnosis what treatment method did you use? This will help to decide if the tumour is benign or malignant, and whether any further treatment such as chemotherapy might be needed. He is normally out and back on my lap within 3 minutes. .
