59 In Memory Poems

Did we remember to thank you enough For all you have done for us? Members applied the exercise to one of their works in progress, and all felt the process improved their piece and moved it forward. And the crowd in the court gave a whoop and a call And danced the juba from wall to wall. I grieve, yet know no remedy: I pine, yet have no way to meet her.

Foothill and Prairie Memories: A Group of Poems by HIGINBOTHAM, John D.: Good + Staplebound

We could hardly see how Simple books were a care. Many waters cannot quench love, no flood can sweep it away; if a man were to offer for love the whole wealth of his house, it would be utterly scorned. In 1968, Davis wrote a pornographic novel, titled Sex Rebel: Black, publishing it under the pseudonym Bob Greene.

The group consists of a core of about eight enthusiastic members who eagerly look forward to resurrecting the sessions each February, and each year we welcome another half dozen or so who may or may not become committed to the process.

Running Poems to Get You Through

Butting through the delicate mists of the morning. It comes like lightning, goes past roaring. We hold our breath and maybe even bow our heads, look down at the earth. May the sun shine warm upon your face; the rains fall soft upon your fields and until we meet again, may God hold you in the palm of His hand.

Prairie Schooner

It's all a part of the Master's plan, A step on the road to home. If I can remember your light, happy stance, And the way when your meal came you did a quick dance.
