Vanya believes he has lost his life and has worked for the last twenty-five years for nothing.

Table of Contents: Chekhov's great plays :

The play features Nina, whom Trepliov loves. Only in the case of her last love, that for her foster son, Sasha, in her maternal role, does Olenka develop opinions of her own. However, while the term had no transcendental significance for him, he felt that faith played an important role in the creation of civilised society.

Chapter 1. Chekhov's Vision of Reality

Drawing on a lifetime of work in the creative arts, Golomb draws our attention to alluring new areas, for example indicating the value of comparing the plays and music. His protagonists are either crushed by their sense of disillusionment with the world, or they hold out hope in a better future. Moreover, arguing that Chekhovian meaning is produced precisely in the interactions between and among individual parts, he convincingly makes the case that nothing short of this will do.
