International Business Review

Companies can purchase insurance that offers protection in the event of war, terrorism, labor disputes, supply shortages, and trade restrictions. While many companies may face these types of risks, companies that conduct business in certain foreign jurisdictions, house technology, data and intellectual property abroad, or license technology to joint ventures with foreign partners may have more significant exposure. By contrast, the Chinese and Russian governments intervene regularly in business affairs.

COVID

Experienced international firms conduct research to anticipate potential risks, understand their implications, and take proactive action to reduce their effects. When required or voluntarily obtained, employers typically obtain consent for employee monitoring through acceptance of employee handbooks, and may provide notice by appropriately posting signs.
