Series CSE report ; no. Our findings suggest, though, areas for state action that could hasten the improvement process.

Mind the achievement gap: California's disparities in education, explained

Third-grade SBAC scores have improved 9 percentage points, but growth in later grades is inconsistent. In some instances — say, performance in reading and math between white and black students — the difference in achievement is more than two-fold. The Learning Policy Institute recently highlighted these in which students of color are outperforming their racial, ethnic and socioeconomic peer groups.

ERIC

This transitioning of data collections benefits LEAs in that it prevents them having to report the same data on multiple reports.
