Dalai Lama's Visit To Mongolia Indicates Shape Of Things To Come

The Tibetan people are a distinct race with its own spoken and written language, culture, traditions, food and dress. The fact that hundreds of monks and worshippers waited for several hours in biting temperature in Mongolia for a glimpse of 81 year old Dalai Lama reflects the desire and aspiration of Buddhists around the world.

But when the Republic of China ROC was established, it immediately professed that Mongolia, Tibet, and Xinjiang were still part of China.

Dalai Lama

In February 1951, the then 15-year-old 14th Dalai Lama who was in power sent a five-person delegation to Beijing, with Ngapo leading the negotiations with the central government. The book deals with the experiences of a person as they pass between death and rebirth.
