General introduction

But the area never flourished and came nowhere near regaining the pre-eminence it had enjoyed in prewar years.

Mapping innovation and diffusion of hydrogen fuel cell technologies: Evidence from the UK's hydrogen fuel cell technological innovation system, 1954

The test is whether there are markets beyond the capital that share similar problems, where the concept could feasibly be applied.

The conservation of a fragmented ecosystem within a cultural landscape—The case of ancient woodland in England

I hope to cover this in more detail in future posts and it provides a good excuse to walk more in Hampstead and visit Hampstead pubs. The second President The close of the long reign of Sir Henry Thompson brought to the Cremation Society's highest office an ardent and able advocate of cremation in the person of Sir Charles Cameron, Bart. The result has been a whirlwind of development producing a physical transformation that has been rapid and spectacular.

City villages: More homes, better communities

The UK was a founding member of the ILO, the, the, the, the, and the WTO. The Billingsgate dock may have been used by larger ships that would have been used for cross channel trade. They also found a powerful political constituency in support: left-wing councillors from east and south London boroughs were happy to make cause with right-wing politicians from the shires, since the new policies promised more resources for the first which might help relieve embarrassing pressures on the second.

Resource Papers

Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, attracted wide attention, whilst the cremation in Switzerland of Sir Stafford Cripps, the late Foreign Secretary, received considerable notice in the European Press.
