HOLIDAYS: Jewish sage offers simple words on Days of Awe

Nathan ha-Yarhi, Ha-Manhig 1855 , Hilkhot Zom Kippur, no. It is a joy that stems from the depth of man's inner self.

New Year's Holy Days Offer a Universal Message

During the geonic era the custom of blowing the shofar at the conclusion of the Day of Atonement was adopted, there being differences of opinion about the number of blasts, the time whether at the end of Ne'ilah or after the evening service and Havdalah , and the reason for blowing. It is as if we have transcended from the physical to the purely spiritual -- from the concrete and palpable to the sublime and untouchable -- from that which can be seen to that which cannot be seen.
