Census Datasets

Among the better documented examples, in the Russian Republic the number of Jewish deaths exceeded the number of Jewish births by over 10,000 in 1988, and by 7,600 in 2000 among a greatly diminished Jewish population. Despite these difficulties, after aggregating categories, the data can still reveal some key changes in immigrant composition. When the subsequent fertility decline among Jews became more acute, their natural increase dwindled and became smaller than that of the corresponding general populations.

Gender Thematic Page

While the North-West, South-East, and South-West regions are each homogenous in ethnicity, language, dressing, identity, and other cultural and social norms and values, the North-East, North Central, and South-South regions are an assemblage of different but related ethnic groups, language, and culture.

Census of Canada, 1881

It is carried out every ten years, the last one being in 2001. The interprovincial migrant samples are larger than those of immigrants in all years except 2006.

Census in the World

We also find that migration does not appear to lower fertility due to disruption: more lifetime moves is associated with higher fertility in our sample, which could potentially instead reflect the disruptive effect of migration on access to family planning. The other cities in the Cariboo District included Prince George, Merritt and Salmon Arm.

Census of Canada, 1881

Gender is relational and refers not simply to women, men or other gender groups, but to the relationship between them. Norwell: United Nations

Population Fund. The births frame was stratified by mother's province of residence.

Information archivée dans le Web

There are several relevant concepts such as and that are widely discussed in the migration field.

Canada Genealogy Records

Among these, it can be argued that gender has the biggest impact on the migration experiences of men, women, boys, girls and persons identifying as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex LGBTI. Argentina National population census are carried out in Argentina roughly every ten years, the last one being performed on October 27, 2010. It acts as a catalyst for social upliftment enhancing the returns on investment made in almost every aspect of development effort, be it population control, health, hygiene, environmental degradation control, employment of weaker sections of the society.
