[Webinar] 12th Annual Employment Law Update

Whilst employees will continue to receive 80 per cent of their salaries up to the monthly cap of £2,500 , from August, employers will be required to pay a proportion of this. The case has been remitted to a fresh employment tribunal to consider whether the policy put women with childcare responsibilities at a particular disadvantage when compared with men with childcare responsibilities.

Employment Standards

Trade union activities The EAT has held that an employee was subjected to a detriment by his employer on the grounds of protected trade union activities when he was given an oral warning for failing to comply with a reasonable instruction to delete an email distribution list he had compiled for trade union purposes. Many workers are supplied under long-term flexible arrangements, whereby they are notified periodically of available shifts to cover additional demand or staff absences. The relaxation of the rules only applies to the four weeks statutory leave under EU rules.

With lockdowns in place across the United Kingdom, we have now updated our guide for employers to take into account the current advice for employers. However, the EAT held this was an error of law since not all crew members with childcare responsibilities would necessarily take parental leave. The DC agenda is busy and complex: on top of day-to-day scheme administration, trustees have to address increasing regulation of scheme governance, meet statutory quality standards and navigate changing rules on accessing pension savings which have major administrative and tax implications.

Employment Standards

Over the next few weeks, experts from our Real Estate Sector Group will be looking at some of these issues, offering practical and essential guidance.
