YEAR 11 ENGLISH ADVANCED
MODULE B: CRITICAL STUDY OF LITERATURE: Shakespearean Drama: Hamlet
Duration: 10 weeks

Rationale
The student requires students to have a thorough understanding and knowledge of Hamlet by examining the elements of character, characterization, structure, language, themes and setting. They must explore the play through a range of critical responses and evaluate it through their own subsequent performances of the play. Students should develop a personal understanding in its relationship to their own lives and the lives of others. They should also consider how the play has been received by the past and those other people can evaluate academic critics, their fellow students and the teacher. There is a range of critical responses available for the student to choose from. These responses will help them to understand the play and how it can relate to them with their personality that they have also and to the world around them. The student should also consider the historical context in which Hamlet was written and what was valued in that context. Subsequent performances of Hamlet will also be considered and evaluated. The student should also consider the critical responses to Hamlet. Its tragedy and effects is to re-examine with a range of evidence in a range of contexts. The way we receive and respond to Hamlet is a product of our context and what we value and therefore should be considered. The student should also consider the critical responses to Hamlet and the play and that these two reflect different values.
