Nelson's family were aware of the pregnancy, and his clergyman brother wrote to Emma praising her virtue and goodness. Only a few months later she was unemployed again and moved to London in the autumn of 1777. By this time, Nelson's adventures had prematurely aged him; he had lost an arm and most of his teeth, and was afflicted by coughing spells.

She died on 15 January 1815, aged 49. After the marriage, Greville transferred the cost of Emma Carew's upkeep to Sir William, and suggested that he might move her to an establishment befitting the stepdaughter of an envoy. He came in, and with a pale countenance and faint voice, said, 'We have gained a great Victory.'
