In mills equipped with these sails, the shutters were controlled on all the sails simultaneously by a lever inside the mill connected by rod linkages through the windshaft with the bar operating the movement of the shutters on each sweep. The framework is designed to bring you through the inquiry based teaching and learning process as you plan and teach a particular topic or theme.

Curricular Material

At the beginning of this period, the major sources of power available to and any other potential consumer were animate energy and the power of wind and water, the only exception of any significance being the atmospheric steam engines that had been installed for pumping purposes, mainly in coal mines.
