Vienna's Heurigen, the New

Traditionally used for holiday meals, some Jews have the custom to live as much of their lives as possible in a sukkah during the holiday, even sleeping there. It is said that Elizabeth Bathory, better known as the Blood Countess, spent some time at this residence whilst her husband was studying in Vienna.

Museum of Ethnology, Vienna

The complex is split into two Baroque palaces, Lower Belvedere Rennweg 6 and Upper Belvedere Prinz Eugen-Straße 27 divided by a beautiful garden. Includes info on things like cemeteries several , numerous architectural curiosities, several oddball museums, etc.

The Sacred Ritual of Art

There are some traditional ritual garments that one or both partners may want to wear including a kippah, tallit, kittel and veil. Every year the prestigious Vienna Opera Ball takes place and for a mere 2K euros you can hire a circle box.

Jewish Ritual Objects: A Guide

Gotta get me a magic flute to calm down spectators at heated soccer matches! Distinct from the seven-candled menorah used in the ancient temple in Jerusalem, the hanukiyah symbolizes the miracle of the holiday, when an amount of oil suitable for one day of light burned for eight days. You could then have a sundown drink at the boutique and never boring 25hours Hotel rooftop bar. The collection includes 1,157 drawings, graphics, watercolors, posters, and paintings documenting his artistic output after 1945.

The Vienna Secession

Many locals claim that it takes several years of practice to distinguish between the young Heurige wine and vinegar. Walking down Blood Street is to follow in the footsteps of many who were executed for crimes in Vienna. Similar in style to the town hall in Brussels, the Rathaus has five towers, the middle of which is the largest and is topped by the iconic Rathausman statue.

Ritual Wedding Objects and Garments

Deep inside the heart of the exhibition is the spiritual centre, the NixiForestKupiXawa, the space of celebration, gathering, ritual and contemplation. Use the above itinerary as a pick and mix of activities to help build your own to suit your holiday needs.
