The Generalized System of Preferences examined : Finance & Development, September 1975:

New Zealand extends preferential treatment only to a few primary commodities, while the EEC excludes from its scheme all primary commodities as well as base metals up to the ingot stage. Given the magnitude of the problems at stake and the need to address them, the conference was institutionalized to meet every four years, with intergovernmental bodies meeting between sessions and a permanent secretariat providing the necessary substantive and logistical support.

Obstacles to Brazilian Export Growth and the Present Multilateral Trade Negotiations

The GSTP must be based and applied on the principle of mutuality of advantages in such a way as to benefit equitably all participants, taking into account their respective levels of economic development and trade needs. An assessment While the schemes have not been in operation long enough to provide a clear picture of their economic effects, it is possible to estimate their likely trade effects. He also found that when importers were aware of preferences, the impact of preferences was lessened in the short run by the inability of the exporters to meet the increased demand for preferred goods.
