Wood industry

Abstract The following brief report on the wood-using industries of Iowa is based on returns from the various plants which manufacture wood into finished or partially finished products. The Calcasieu could be counted on for at least one freshet a year, usually in June, and in 1885 a single rise in that river carried between forty and fifty thousand logs southward. The recent closing of the large Louisiana Central Lumber Company mill at Clarks, Caldwell Parish, indicates the general trend of the large mill toward decline.
