Philosopher king

The most notable be the heroic, lyric, tragic, comic, satiric, iambic, elegiac, pastoral, and certain others, some of these being termed according to the matter they deal with, some by the sort of verse they liked best to write in,—for indeed the greatest part of poets have appareled their poetical inventions in that numberous kind of writing which is called verse. I must send you in the behalf of all poets:—that while you live in love, and never get favor for lacking skill of a sonnet; and when you die, your memory die from the earth for want of an epitaph.

Book Review: "In Defense of Philosophy" by Josef Pieper

Now for the poet, he nothing affirms, and therefore never lies. He tells Danielle just to pick up whichever of the two she pleases and that he will return the other puppy to the pet store.

Book Review: "In Defense of Philosophy" by Josef Pieper

It would merely mean that one key argument for the incompatibility of determinism and regulative control is untenable. For the question is, whether the feigned image of poesy, or the regular instruction of philosophy, has the more force in teaching.

Plato's 'Apology'

The Apology: Socrates' Defense

From these familiar ways of being objective, it emerges that objectivity amounts to a serious regard for truth, accuracy, and relevance. Many times he must tell events whereof he can yield no cause; or if he do, it must be poetically. I think the description serves equally well for innovation, where lots of unseen activity occasionally generates a good idea.
