Mahabharata: ASI approves excavation at site of Mahabharata's 'house of lac'

MALARI, District Chamoli: Located in the inner Himalayan Zone at a height of 4000 m above MSL and 60km north-east of Joshimath, the site was excavated by Hemwati Nandan Bahuguna University, Srinagar Garhwal in 1982-83. I am sure that a lot of work and research would have been done to find out the connection between the Mahabharatha epic and sites like Hastinapur, Kurukshetra.

Excavation

Adichanallur is more of an urn burial site. In the XI-XIII centuries, Samarkand became the capital of Karakhanids and was surrounded by new defensive walls. These graves have been dug into the alluvial terrace to a depth of 1.

Locals as well devotees from across the nation keep coming, though less in number. This period is known as the protohistoric iron age and a very significant feature of this period was the expansion of funerary culture. Findings from the excavations at Pomparippu, Yapahuwa, Kokebe, Yatigalpotta 750 B.

Archaeological Excavations prove veracity of Mahabharata War around 3100 BCE

Archaeological investigations at the Afrasiab were carried out from the end of the XIX century. Sage Veda Vyas also mentions in Mahabharata about usage of atomic weapons from both sides killing millions of soldiers and kings within 18 days. The site yielded the remains of Painted Grey Ware PGW from the earliest level along with other associated materials include terracotta figurines, beads, potter-stamp and the dental and femur portions of domesticated horse Equus Cabalus Linn.
