I normally ask when I ring for key instructions but didn't speak to the owner herself and the person didn't seem to know any details! ## Manor Park Residential Home

A private wing was built for the use of the family, and this was joined to the main part of the hall by a corridor. The survey states that whereas before 1066 there were 48 houses which paid tax implying a population of at least 2,400 , by 107 there were 205 fewer houses, the scale of the loss making it certain that major catastrophe had taken place. Only one bin bag was provided, so take your own, toilet rolls the same.

From the north of the hall are two further approaches. Their courses have been traced by several historians, whose evidence includes distinctive place-names such as Saltersford, which is found widely in the Pennines. The grand entrance is on the north side, with the Gladstone family arms incorporating a negro's head recalling the derivation of the family's wealth from slavery.

Preen Manor

From 1896 until 1947, the estate was served by the 381 mm gauge. Associated with these approaches are further listed buildings.

The west range has a half-timbered upper storey with two gables, and a central with which are polygonal at the base and circular higher up and have conical roofs. The cottage is well maintained and done to a high standard, but we found the plumbing to be quite noisy and disturbed some of the family during the night.
