I proposed this in that meeting. The Monarchy's slow progress carried with it two dangers that Berchtold was conscious of: public opinion might cool down and - Germany shared this concern - the other Powers might be able to impose mediation. The chances of preserving the Union are growing more desperate.

It set appropriate measures in hand. On its maiden voyage the Trans-Siberian rail saw Philadelphia-made train cars run across the Russian heartland, and it is no accident that all of the key players involved in the Alaska purchase were also involved in the Russian continental rail program on both sides of the ocean. A combination of dates in the years immediately before the War helped to inflame national ardour and military spirit.
