It also contributes to an assessment of significance: was this a big-deal change, or was it relatively modest compared to other developments? The Enlightenment brought with it many philosophies that we still reference today such as capitalism, formally coined by Adam Smith in The Wealth of Nations, and new political theories like the separation of powers Montesquieu, the social contract Rousseau, and natural rights of life, liberty, and property John Locke.

Reactions to imperialism were many, such as the Tanzimat Reforms and Self-Strengthening Movement in the Ottoman Empire and Qing China. Cambodia similarly formed a Marxist state and under Pol Pot, the Cambodian Genocide took out any signs of intellectualism. Africans were mostly abused for labor, such as in the Belgian Congo, where Africans who did not collect enough rubber had their hands amputated.
