Indeed, Henriette Renié played on an Erard harp - it doesn't matter much, but I can tell you that her first harp was a 47-string gothic maple string, no. And anyway, I'm only talking about this book, I don't question the qualities of his music. Schikaneder, when he repeated the opera at his theatre, sent a couple of tailors on to the stage who slowly accomplished the disrobing, etc.
