SANAA's kazuyo sejima and ryue nishizawa win 2010 pritzker prize

Kazuyo Sejima and Ryue Nishizawa, a duo of Japanese architects praised for using everyday building materials to create ethereal structures that shelter flowing, dreamlike spaces, have won the Pritzker Prize. The Moriyama House is a perfect example of a home designed to represent a community, while at the same time connecting the inside and outside. It was founded in by two Japanese architects Kazuyo Sejima.
