Together they opposed the Muslims in the difficult and inaccessible mountain areas of the northern flanks of the Picos de Europa. It seems that Tāriq had to persuade Mūsā to allow the Muslims to settle in Spain and as late as 717 the Caliph 'Umar b. Tāriq. To add to the confusion, it would seem that these labels meant different things in different areas.

Nużm al

The purposes of the raids were to take booty and to establish the prestige of the governor, whose most important public functions were the leadership of the Muslims in prayer in the mosque and in battle against the infidel. In North Africa at this time, these opinions usually took the form of Kharijism, but in 768 and 770 a Berber of the tribe of Miknāsa called Shaqyāb.
