Third European Evidence

Disclaimer The ECCO Consensus Guidelines are based on an international consensus process. These data were regarded as insufficient by the Consensus to recommend antibiotics for maintenance of remission in UC.

Third European Evidence

Because of substantial heterogeneity, it was not possible to discriminate between complete and partial responsiveness to steroids.

Third European Evidence

Finally, an equivalence study was conducted in 327 patients with UC in remission for no longer than 12 months, who were treated with either 5-ASA 1.

Third European Evidence

Thiopurines There are few data on factors predicting response to azathioprine, and there is uncertainty regarding the optimal duration of treatment. A common question is whether to continue an IM when starting anti-TNF therapy in patients with IM-refractory colitis. In particular, recent trial designs have tended to assess both induction and subsequent maintenance in the same study.

Third European Evidence

No head-to head, prospective trials are available. It has not yet been licensed for use in Europe. The management of refractory proctitis is discussed in section 11.
