An extended environmental input

In figure 2, which shows the 34 industries for which the Dutch disease coefficient is statistically significant, we can see that more than half of these industries 19 are clustered in the range — 0. He is a Hopi man willing to share his ancestors instructions and warning as to how us humans can survive the crisis that is now upon us physically, mentally and spiritually. In brief, the idea is that once we enter a decline phase in fossil fuel availability—first in petroleum—our growth-based economic system will struggle to cope with a contraction of its very lifeblood.

Interviews Archive

The invisible hand of the market will slap us silly demanding a new energy infrastructure based on non-fossil solutions. Oil reserves are classified as proven, probable and possible. Why do you need to change your car every 3 years or so? I compare the situation to a chemical formula, or to a cake recipe.

Carbon dioxide emissions in a methane economy

An automated platform doesn't need personnel, and therefore neither does it need fire systems, sound insulation, catering or a whole range of other installations.

Carbon dioxide emissions in a methane economy

If properly managed, financial liberalization policies can therefore have the additional benefit of increasing self-insurance for the poor. The most obvious impact of a resource boom on this model is on labour markets.
