Nonfiction Book Review: Fire: From A Journal of Love the Unexpurgated Diary of Anais Nin, 1934

She's been castigated for valuing sexual pleasure highly, for breaking taboos, and for the lies and deceit that facilitated her love life. Edited and with a Preface by Gunther Stuhlmann; Index by Anaïs Nin Book 18 editions published between 1966 and 2014 in English and German and held by 133 WorldCat member libraries worldwide The final volume ends as the author wished; not with her last two years of pain but at a joyous, reflective moment on a trip to Bali. I have so much courage, fire, energy, for so many things, yet I get so hurt, so wounded by small things.

May show signs of minor shelf wear and contain limited notes and highlighting. She lives on the reflections of herself in the eyes of others.

Nearer the Moon: From Journal of The Unexpurgated Diary of Anaïs Nin, 1937

Bored and sexually unfulfilled with Guiller, Nin returns to Paris with Miller in 1935, and this diary, which extends to 1937, finds her again divided in her passions between Miller and another lover, Gonzalo More, a Peruvian communist. As she grapples with her own conscience, a single question dominates her thoughts: What will happen when June returns to Paris?
