Triumphant Satyr by Sutton, Denys

After a fortuitous meeting with the financier, philanthropist, and art collector B. In 1884 Rodin was commissioned to create a monument for the town of Calais to commemorate the sacrifice of the burghers who gave themselves as hostages to King Edward III of England in 1347 to raise the year-long siege of the famine-ravaged city. He was enamoured of the art of the Middle Ages, and among his major efforts was the book Les Cathédrales de France 1914; Cathedrals of France, 1965.
